

FUND STRATEGY

The Delafield Fund will seek to achieve its objectives by investing primarily in the equity securities (i.e., common stocks, securities convertible into common stocks or rights or warrants to subscribe for or purchase common stocks) of domestic companies. Specifically, the Fund will primarily invest in equity securities which the portfolio managers believe to be undervalued or to represent special situations. An example of a special situation is a company undergoing change that might cause its market value to grow at a rate faster than the market generally.

*The Advisor has contractually agreed to waive management fees and/or reimburse expenses in order to ensure that the Fund's expense ratio does not exceed 1.25% (excluding taxes, interest expense, acquired fund fees and expenses, or extraordinary expenses such as litigation) until at least 3/1/2018. QUARTERLY UPDATE

- The optimism that catapulted markets in the fourth quarter waned somewhat during 1Q 2017. The "Trump rally" lost some steam, with the new administration's failure to make good on its promise to repeal and replace the American Health Care Act, causing investors to question the outcome of several other important campaign pledges. However, encouraging domestic economic statistics, including labor force participation, consumer confidence and ISM manufacturing data, were enough to offset these doubts, and ultimately helped the market extend its multi-quarter rally.
- The Fund generated a return of 2.64% in the first quarter, just ahead of the Russell 2000 Index gain of 2.47%, but about 300 basis points behind the S&P 500 Index. We experienced particular strength in our Information Technology holdings, which in aggregate, contributed about 125 basis points to our relative performance. Our investments in the Industrials and Materials sectors were essentially in line and were not additive to our relative performance. Investments in the Consumer Discretionary sector experienced a challenging quarter, and detracted from both our absolute and relative metrics. On a relative basis, our lack of exposure to the Health Care sector was also a negative, as it was the top performing market sector during the quarter.
- Market valuations continued to appear full to us, and as a consequence, we maintained sizeable reserves which negatively impacted our relative performance by about 60 basis points. Given the valuation disconnect as well as global macro uncertainties, we expect to continue to hold sizeable reserves as a hedge against volatility while searching for unappreciated investment opportunities.
- Our top contributing stocks during 1Q 2017 included Diebold Nixdorf Incorporated, TEGNA, Inc., and TTM Technologies, Inc. In contrast, our largest detractors were Horizon Global Corp., Team, Inc. and Babcock & Wilcox Enterprises.
- We initiated several starter positions during 1Q 2017, including among others, Avnet, Inc., Franks International, and Triumph Group, Inc. Our largest exit during the quarter was Kemet Corp., and we also closed out of a few smaller positions.

DISCLOSURES

Mutual Fund investing involves risk. Principal loss is possible. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. The Fund invests in smaller companies, which involve additional or special risks such as small companies rely on limited product lines, financial resources and business activities that may make them more susceptible than larger companies to setbacks or downturns; and small cap stocks are less liquid and more thinly traded which make them more volatile than stocks of larger companies.
