

FUND STRATEGY

The Delafield Fund will seek to achieve its objectives by investing primarily in the equity securities (i.e., common stocks, securities convertible into common stocks or rights or warrants to subscribe for or purchase common stocks) of domestic companies. Specifically, the Fund will primarily invest in equity securities which the portfolio managers believe to be undervalued or to represent special situations. An example of a special situation is a company undergoing change that might cause its market value to grow at a rate faster than the market generally.

Calendar Year Returns

QUARTERLY UPDATE

- U.S. stocks experienced a meaningful correction in the fourth quarter of 2018. Declines began in October with investors spooked by rising interest rates, mid-term election commotion, and a deceleration in corporate revenue and earnings growth. While indices eked out gains in November due to a late month rally, trading for the bulk of the month was bearish, in particular among the so-called FAANG stocks, which entered bear market territory. In December, a convergence of negative news drove market declines of historic proportions and the return of hyper-volatility. For the quarter, every economic sector finished in the red, with the "best" performing sector within the Russell 2000 Index being Utilities, down -2%, and the worst being Energy, down -41%.
- While our cash reserves helped us outperform the Russell 2000 Index, which fell -20.20%, the Fund still declined -16.88% during the quarter, trailing the S&P 500 Index by about 300 basis points.
- Similar to the indices, the Fund experienced absolute declines in each of the primary economic sectors in which it was invested during the quarter. Relative to the Russell 2000 Index, the Fund's Materials and Communication Services holdings outperformed, while Information Technology and Industrials investments underperformed. As referenced earlier, the Fund's cash reserves acted as somewhat of a buffer against steep market declines, and we also began utilizing the Fund's dry powder to take advantage of more attractive valuations late in the fourth quarter.
- Fabrinet continued to be our top performer during the quarter, managing to generate a positive absolute return. In contrast, TTM Technologies Inc., McDermott International Inc. and Eastman Chemical Co. were among the largest detractors.
- We initiated several new positions, including Garrett Motion, Inc., Lumentum Holdings Inc., and Tile Shop Holdings Inc. We also exited several positions during the quarter, the largest of which was Barnes Group, Inc.

DISCLOSURES

Mutual Fund investing involves risk. Principal loss is possible. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results. The Fund invests in smaller companies, which involve additional or special risks such as small companies rely on limited product lines, financial resources and business activities that may make them more susceptible than larger companies to setbacks or downturns; and small cap stocks are less liquid and more thinly traded which make them more volatile than stocks of larger companies.
